

HUMANE SOCIETY OF WESTERN MONTANA

The damage has been assessed, and dogs and staff are now back in our kennels as we consider options for making repairs to that area of the shelter. During this time, staff members will assist volunteers and members of the public wishing to visit or work with our dogs.

Presently, it does not look like insurance will cover repairs to the kennels. While the situation is complex, we are moving ahead with plans to make repairs and return our building to a state-of-the art facility that offers safety and shelter to hundreds of animals every year.